i am writing to express my feelings about the proposed remedies for the microsoft settlement before the public comment period closes in a few days.

my concern is that no adequate remedy will be chosen to address this situation. although i don't have any specific solutions to propose, i believe that many people have come up with many good ideas that would be effective. for instance, i agree with the sentiment of a recently published article in salon.com:

thank you for taking the time to read and consider this message.
